NATIONAL LOAN CO.

269 and 213 MERMOD & JACCARD Bids.,
407 N. HROADWAY, COR LOCUST ST. Louis and general civic advancement, were made yesterday at an informal meeting at the East St. Louis Post Office.

It resulted in the calling of a general meeting at the City Court room, in the City Hall, for Thursday afternoon, at which the preliminary work will be outlined and a start made toward effecting an organization, which is generally recog-nized as badly needed in East St. Louis-The call for the meeting was issued by Thomas L. Fekete, a real estate and finan cial man and former Postmaster of East St. Louis, The club, when it is organpolitical, and is expected to take in representatives of every profession and business in the city.

The plans for the increaseing of the population to 100,000 are as yet embryonic, It is expected, however, that at the meeting on Thursday suggestions of no little value in this regard will be made, and the basis of an organization will be effected, which will promote the civic advancement of the municipality, and will make it a place to be desired by persons looking for locations for business, manufacturing or residence purposes. The close proximity of East St. Louis to the coal fields of Illinois, the conven-iences of the many railroad lines and belt lines give to manufacturers advantages lines give to manufacturers advantages which it is claimed by East St. Louisans are excelled only by Chicago.

These advantages of East St. Louis, it is thought, should got greater advertisement than has been done before, and it is believed that many industries which at present know nothing of the advantages of East St. Louis can be induced to locate there.

of East St. Louis can be induced to locate there.

Another feature of the proposed organization is to start a crusade in favor of more extensive municipal improvements and the demolishing of old shantles and their replacing with modern and substantial structures. There is now a five story modern office building in East St. Louis, which was erected by Judge William P. Launtz, one of the old-time residents of East St. Louis, and it is believed because of his success with this building that one or two more will be erected in the spring. The establishment of the De Forrest Wireless Station in East St. Louis as a probable terminal for Eastern stations is expected to assist materially in advertising the city.

It is planned to so organize the One Hundred Thousand Club that every member will be a "booster" for East St. Louis and to arrange committees so that in the event of a committee arriving in East St. Louis to look over a site for a location for an industry the visitors can be properly entertained. At present there is no organization which could entertain visitors in East St. Louis, although this feature, it is expected will be remedied by the reorganization of the Real Estate Exchange to-day.

IN EAST ST. LOUIS ROMANCE OF FAIR CORNER STONE OF ENDS IN WEDDING NEW EDIFICE LAID

> Native of Edwardsville and Young Virginia Woman Plighted Their Troth at Close of Exposition.

> The close of the World's Fair marked the opening of a new life to a couple who had found their romance while viewing the scenes of the Ivory City. The marof F. E. Fahnestock of No. 3420 Franklin avenue, St. Louis, formerly of Edwards ville, and Miss Birdle M. Barker of Mendota. Va., was brought about entirely by Last August Miss Barker came West to 'do" the Fair as a guest of her sister Mrs. George Jarrell, of Danville. Mr Fahnestock was an attache of the German exhibit in the Varied Industries building. The women were much interested in the German summer house there, and he found them attentive listeners as he explained the exhibit. Miss Barker was particularly attentive.

They met several times during her stay and became well acquainted. She declared that she intended to return to see the close of the Fair and did so. Mr. Fahnestock urged his suit with such success that their wedding resulted Sunday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jarrell, in Danville.

ville. The couple departed at once for St. Louis, where they will reside. Mr. Fahnestock is a native of Edwardsville and was until recently a prominent instructor in Madison County. He gave up teaching to become a customs inspector at the Fair.

Edwardsville Notes. Edwardsville Notes.

-Mrs. Raiph Adams of Granite City, who was indicted jointly with her hindand, was released from jail through the kind-heartedness of the Sheriff, C. F. Crowe. Mrs. Adams's connection with the case in which she is named as a principal is but slight, and as her health at present is such that she should not be in a jail the Sheriff took pity on her and interested the Circuit Judge. Judge Burroughs reduced her bond to $100, and, finding that she could not give that, Sheriff Crowe stood good for it, and the woman was released.

-No services were held at St. Andrew's and the woman was released.

-No services were held at St. Andrew's Church yesterday, as the pastor, the Reverend Doctor W. Fletcher Cook, went to Portland, Ind., to deliver the annual address to the Elks.
